Garage Construction: On this date I asked Mr. Houston if he would have some research done on the legalities of not going to the National Capital Planning Commission in connection with the garage construction. I described to him the discussion with Colonel White and Colonel White's very positive position on this matter. I told Mr. Houston that it was my understanding that there is a National Capital Planning Act of 1959 vintage which controls this matter. Mr. Houston will check out basic authority as well as geographic jurisdiction although it is also his impression the Commission covers the Washington Metropolitan Area rather than being limited to the District of Columbia.
